50 members of the Libertarian Party of Illinois (“LP Illinois”) were among 300 people from various freedom loving groups who participated in an End the Fed Rally in downtown Chicago on Saturday, November 22nd.

Chicago was one of 38 cities which held rallies on that day.

“The energy was incredible,” remarked Dave Brady, State Chair of LP Illinois, who was one of the LP Illinois members in attendance.

“Horn blowing, cheering, nods of agreement, people taking pictures and asking how we can fix things, it was great to be a part of the rally and I am proud that LP Illinois members participated,” he added.

Brady also lauded the efforts of the Chicago Police Department in assisting the marchers with traffic and with keeping the group together. “They couldn't have been more professional, helpful and friendly,” he said. The march began across the street from the Wrigley building, traveled through Millennium Park, past State Street and ended up a block from the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago building on La Salle Street.

The purpose of the rally was to draw attention to the flaws of the Federal Reserve System, which has existed since 1913. “End the Fed” activists believe that the Federal Reserve Bank, through its inflation of the money supply and the distortion of free markets resulting from its intervention, is responsible for the current financial and economic crisis.

The rally was featured on the local Chicago news on Saturday evening. There are also several rally clips posted to You Tube.
